Dear Supporters, Partners, and Friends of Entojutu,

It is with great pleasure that we welcome you to the third quarter newsletter of 2023. We are delighted to have you join us on this impactful and innovative journey. As you delve into the updates from the fields from Entojutu Nigeria, we hope that your spirits will be uplifted. Your unwavering support and partnership in empowering rural communities in Africa are deeply appreciated.

We are excited to present the latest developments from Entojutu because we recognize your support and how it has made our success in this quarter possible. This newsletter contains a summary of all our activities for the second quarter of the year and its available to download on our website.

Inspiring the Next Generation: University of Ibadan Students Visit Entojutu

We were pleased to welcome students from the University of Ibadan's Faculty of Veterinary Medicine to our facility on August 19, 2024, where we shared our dedication to sustainable change and insect-based solutions. The students' enthusiasm for learning was evident through their continuous inquiries and eagerness to understand how insects can contribute to positive outcomes.

During their visit, we demonstrated the potential of black soldier flies and crickets as catalysts for change. We also showcased our cricket rearing facility, highlighting the importance of rearing crickets and their benefits, including:

- High protein content for animal feed
- Low environmental impact
- Efficient food conversion ratio

The students were engaged in practical sessions, learning about insect life cycles and their significance in sustainable agriculture. They also had valuable insights into the capacity of insects in addressing global challenges.

Highlights from the Visit:

- Engaging sessions on insect life cycles and their significance in sustainable agriculture
- Practical involvement with black soldier flies and crickets
- Valuable insights into the capacity of insects in addressing global challenges
- Networking opportunities with our team

Testimonial:

"The visit to Entojutu opened our eyes to the possibilities of sustainable change. We're inspired to explore insect-based solutions in our future careers." - Student, University of Ibadan

We extend our gratitude to Ibikunle Mark Akanbi for facilitating this enlightening interaction and for his support in nurturing the upcoming cohort of sustainability advocates."

BENEFICIARY SUCCESS STORY

Our beneficiaries are demonstrating remarkable progress that fills us with pride. Danjuma's story amongst others serves as a wellspring of inspiration for our organization. Danjuma, a farmer from Gombe who participated in our training program, successfully applied the knowledge gained on Black Soldier fly farming to his own farm. He was impressed by the significant increase in his farm's yield, achieved at a very low cost. It is truly inspiring to witness the positive impact a small insect can have in accelerating rural resilience, facilitating economic recovery and growth in vulnerable, conflict-affected regions, and driving systemic change in market systems. The advancements made by Danjuma who lives in an area typically overshadowed by news of conflicts are incredibly uplifting. The sight of Danjuma and his colleagues embracing nature and cultivating resilience is heartening. The efforts of these beneficiaries extend beyond enhancing economic prospects for their communities. They have become advocates for organic waste management, sustainable production practices, and the provision of healthier, natural food options for their localities. With the establishment of two facilities starting with the Entojutus' starter kit, these remarkable changemakers are leading the charge against climate change one step at a time, utilizing available waste resources effectively. We invite you to join us in nurturing environmental champions who work harmoniously with nature.

Dear friends and supporters,

We believe that real change can only happen through a concerted effort. Like the African proverb 'it takes a village to raise a child'. We believe only through collaboration between partners can we build prosperous, climate resilient and environmentally friendly farming communities in Nigeria for a sustainable future.

We would like to express our sincere gratitude for any support that helps us to continue our work.
